Diminished Value and Spaceballs?

Evan have you just gone plain mad? What possibly could the concept of Diminished Value and Mel Brooks' 1987 cult favourite science fiction parody film, have to do with one another? While not commenting on my actual state of mind for the moment, the confusion is justified. Please however indulge me while I breakdown this analysis, step-by-step. A diminished value claim may put extra money into your pocket due to the loss of value of one's vehicle after a crash that was caused by someone else. "What you talkin bout Willis?" Simple, as this compensation is intended to cover the difference in value lost between your vehicle before and after an accident. The rationale is that if one later tries to sell, a buyer will not offer as much money since it already suffered damage. Alrighty then I'm with ya, but the movie Spaceballs?

Well, the wicked characters President Wylon A. Skroob, Dark Helmet and Colonel Sandurz that seek to do harm against King Rowland, Princess Vespa and planet Druidia, act just like a big, bad insurance company would versus you. They'll proclaim, "evil will always triumph, because good is dumb" for making a diminished claim against us for your recently repaired vehicle. That's where our team comes into play. We have experience in handling thousands of these matters for damaged cars, trucks, motorcycles, boats, planes and RVs, including the Winnebago Eagle 5 owned by Lone Star and Barf!

These cases are taken on a contingency basis. That means there are no upfront legal fees; payment is only made upon an eventual settlement. Our firm will even outlay the cost of the appraisal report. Lone Star uses the meta physical "power of the Schwartz" to defeat "the dark side." Contrary, we exercise "the force" of research, argument, persuasion and persistence to prevail. If your mode of transportation was damaged in an accident on land, sea, air or space, contact us for a free consultation at (844) 411-KING (411-5464).

In closing, The Law Offices of Evan M. Ostfeld P.A. traditionally handles workers' compensation and personal injury matters, including pharmaceuticals and defective products claims. Feel free however to discuss any of your other legal issues with us. If we cannot take the case, The Referral King® will gladly try to help you find someone who may be able to assist. Although we do not practice in the "final frontier", our legal connections cover all 50 states and U.S. territories! We are here to help!

Godspeed,

#1 SELLING WEED KILLER CAUSES CANCER!

Across the U.S., thousands of people harmed by using Roundup have filed claims against Bayer AG, which bought Monsanto in 2018. Monsanto has manufactured the herbicide since 1973. Although the company insists that its product is safe, the Internal Agency for Research disagrees. Roundup usage is believed to cause non-Hodgkin's lymphoma (NHL) and varying other forms of blood cancers including: B-cell lymphoma, T-cell lymphoma, Chronic lymphocytic lymphoma (CLL), Hairy cell lymphoma and Mantle cell lymphoma.

Why the lawsuits? While the Plaintiffs admit that Roundup does a great job of eradicating weeds, they also contend that the active ingredient glyphosate causes cancer. Not surprisingly, for years, commercial farmers, groundskeepers, nursery/garden center workers, landscapers, and homeowners continue to apply it to get rid of unwanted vegetation.

As such, people who use it regularly are at a greater risk of becoming sick. Bayer however shirked its corporate social responsibility over profits and failed to warn the public of the danger. It is interesting to note that while Roundup is banned in many nations, it is still sold in ours. Further and while not explaining why, Bayer stated that it plans to eventually change the Roundup formula.

The litigation alleges and juries have held that Monsanto was aware of the link between Roundup and cancer for over 30 years. In 2019, juries reached verdicts of $2 billion and $80 million respectively for California plaintiffs who said they were diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma after using Roundup. Attorneys also won another $289 million for a former groundskeeper who became terminally ill. Recently, the U.S. Supreme Court has rejected another Bayer's appeal.

We are currently handling hundreds of Roundup matters for clients all across the country. Most of which have been filed in Missouri (Monsanto's headquarters) and Pennsylvania. Our team evaluates each client's matter individually with the full intention of taking them to trial. The next one is currently scheduled in Philadelphia.

If you or a loved one has been diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma or a blood cancer after being exposed to Roundup, a free case review is provided. There are no upfront attorney's fees or costs unless a recovery is made. Should you qualify, significant financial compensation could be awarded. Although a global settlement may be near, it is not too late to join the fight. Don't delay, call (866) I SUE YOU (478-3998) now. Let us handle the claim so you can focus on your health!

BASEBALL'S BATTLE TO WIN BACK FANS

Baseball has a magic that transcends generations. Whether you're reminiscing about the games of your youth or tuning into the current season's excitement, there's something in the sport that speaks to all of us. Recent shifts in demographics and viewership however have led many fans and the MLB to worry, 'will the game survive?'

Take a moment to remember your first game. Maybe it was with your parents, or perhaps you were the one taking your child. The taste of a hot dog, the smell of fresh-cut grass, the shared thrill of a home run — these are memories that connect families, friends, and entire communities. These were simpler times, baseball was more than entertainment; it was a unifying force. Stadiums were packed, legends were made, and love for the game ran deep.

In 1980, attendance and ratings were in their prime. It exceeded 43 million and tv had a 32.8 rating. In fact, the World Series that year between the Philadelphia Phillies and Kansas City Royals had over 42 million viewers!

Fast-forward to the year 2020, the World Series saw a record low of 9.8 million viewers. What happened? First, there's the age factor. With a median viewer of 57, it seems younger fans aren't connecting with the game the way previous generations did. The slower pace of baseball just isn't resonating as people today desire constant action and instant gratification. But it's not just that; the game has faced fierce competition from other sports leagues. Additionally, since MLB schedules many of its playoff games during the week or at night, it may prevent younger kids from tuning in.

Baseball is nothing if not resilient. By introducing pitch clocks, limiting mound visits and pickoff moves have sped up the action. Plus they've banned infielder shifts and made bigger bases which have led to more hits and the success of stealing in order to make it more exciting. All of this without compromising the game's integrity. Expanding to inter-league play and increasing the number of wild card teams have also enhanced the fan experience.

America's pastime story is still being written, and it's a tale of evolution, adaptation, and a renewed connection with fans. The blend of innovations and the honouring of past glories is shaping a new era for the sport. So grab your cap and glove, and get ready for the next pitch. Baseball is playing hardball to win back our hearts, and the future is so bright that you'll need to wear shades!

3M Earplugs Cause Hearing Loss for Military Service Members

What Are 3M Combat Arms Earplugs?

The company manufactured these dual-ended earplugs for hearing protection from close range firearms and noises from battlefield conditions. Due to their defective design, the earplugs can slightly loosen and subtly move out of the ear canal just enough for the loud sounds to cause hearing damage. According to reports, they knew about these issues, but knowingly sold them to the U.S. military from 2000-2015. What's worse, they failed to warn the government and our brave soldiers!

What Risks Are Associated With Their Use?

Common injuries include unilateral and bilateral hearing loss, tinnitus (or ringing in the ears), permanent hearing damage and or deafness.

Damages:

In July 2018, the 3M corporation agreed to pay $9.1 million to the U.S. government for knowingly supplying the military with defective earplugs. Since 2019, verdicts have exceeded $300 million dollars on behalf of the injured personnel. They have encompassed 16 trials with the "The Good Guys" (U.S. military) winning 13 out of 19 cases for a whopping 68.4% success rate! To pull a fast one, 3M filed for bankruptcy to avoid further liability which the judge rightfully denied.
